Work room
Watch the urban planner at work. Covering an area of around 300 hectares, Bremen’s Überseestadt district is one of the largest urban development projects in Europe. Which models and ideas were used as inspiration for development of the area? How can different uses such as port industries and manufacturing, services and retail, food and beverage and culture, as well as accommodation and leisure be combined so that they coexist in a lively and harmonious manner?

Welcome to a young district of the city

The Überseestadt district is experiencing continual and dynamic development in all areas – whether as a place to live or work, or as a leisure or event location. We would like to invite you to come and take a fresh look at the Überseestadt district.

The new exhibition welcomes its visitors as if they were part of a flat share. The doors to the communal room are always open. People get together in the living room, pop into the working room, call into the guest room and take a journey back in time in the port room. The various residents all report back with their own individual observations and experiences of earlier times and of the Überseestadt district as it is today.

After this initial browse around the Infocenter Überseestadt, things really get going: get to know the district’s businesses and residents, locations and creative artists, as well as its leisure facilities and different housing options; all of this is just 1.5 km west of the city’s market square. The Überseestadt district is located in the immediate vicinity of the city centre.

Living space
Come and try it out: you have the opportunity to test the Überseestadt district in order to see what it has to offer as a potential home. All accommodation wishes have been taken into consideration. These include views overlooking River Weser, having the feel of an apartment loft or boasting a family-friendly atmosphere.

Port room
Travel into the past. The port room allows you to trace real-life stories of things that happened in this exciting place. The Überseestadt district’s past as a port remains at the heart of the area. Bremen’s reputation for being an industrial location was decisively shaped here.

Guest room
Simply take a seat and let yourself be inspired by the cultural, food and beverage, and leisure activities on offer, which encompass modern and traditional, as well as stylish and classic. There is lots to do in the Überseestadt district. Furthermore, there are many beautiful places in old and new buildings, near the water’s edge or in the parks.

Communal room
Approximately 300 hectares of Überseestadt can be seen at a glance thanks to this impressive model. At the same time, the 12 square metre model gives you the opportunity to discover the Überseestadt district interactively and to test your knowledge of it with a fun quiz.
